

COVID Impact Training

Professionals and Parents Working Together

ABOUT THE PRESENTER

Kelly Ott, Med, MHS, CC-SLP

With over 25 years of experience as a consultant, educator, licensed speech-language pathologist and administrator, Kelly has served children and adults with a diverse range of educational needs. She is the co-author of Smarter Steps to IEP Goals. She has developed courses on IEP Goal development.

Kelly is a national speaker on this topic. She holds a master's degree in communication disorders and in educational administration. She holds multiple certifications and is licensed to practice in Missouri and Mississippi. Kelly has worked in a variety of school settings such as rural, private, public, and parochial. Kelly has served as a regular education teacher, elementary and junior high principal, high school assistant principal, special education director, district 504 case manager, and district FERPA trainer. In private practice, she provides Independent Education Evaluations (IEEs) and Self-Advocacy training for student-led IEPs. She is the co-founder of SMARTER Steps, a national consulting business for developing compliant and collaborative IEPs.

ABOUT THIS EVENT

As we move forward into the future, IEP teams need to understand the issue of COVID Impacts services and how to address them. Learning objectives of this event:

- Review the concepts of regression, rebound, and lack of instruction
- Review MO DESE's guidance on COVID Impact Services
- Determine differences between COVID Impact services and Compensatory Services
- Create a framework for the future on how to address COVID Impact Services
- Determine next steps in collaborative partnerships with the IEP team to address COVID Impact Services for students
- Review resources for assistance in Missouri

A professional development certificate for 2 continuing ed hours will be issued.
